

Continuing Education Requirements for Delaware Licensed Social Workers (And How to Stay on Track)

As a licensed clinical social worker (LCSW) in the state of Delaware, it is your responsibility to adhere to continuing education requirements each period in order to renew your license. Beyond license renewal being key to you maintaining your practice, continuing education is essential to stay abreast of what is happening in your field – something your clients will always appreciate you taking seriously. Education is how we all continue to learn and further hone our skills and expertise, so it's certainly something to be celebrated. Though education is fantastic, keeping on track with the many hours you need to fulfill can be a challenge. Thankfully, there is a fantastic resource available to help you with that. Before we dive into the resource, let's start by outlining what is required of Delaware LCSWs in order to renew their license.

Licensee Requirements for Delaware Licensed Social Workers

Licensed clinical social workers in Delaware have an obligation to complete 40 hours of continuing education every two years if they wish to renew their license. Licenses expire on January 31 of odd-numbered years, so all continuing education credits need to be earned before that time. Within the required 40 hours, at least six must be on professional ethics, one regarding mandatory reporting, and no more than ten from self-directed activities. Additionally, all 40 hours need to come from Board-approved activities or courses, which are any of which offered by the Association of Social Work Boards, the National Association of Social Work, the Clinical Social Work Association, and the American Psychological Association.

Key Takeaways:

- Delaware LCSWs must earn 40 hours of continuing education every two years.
- Licenses expire on January 31 of odd-numbered years.
- At least six hours need to be in ethics, one in mandatory reporting, and no more than ten via self-directed activities.
